Band Class and Instrument Supply List

In addition to each specific instrument, there are certain supplies that your child needs to have.

1. Book
 - a. Beginner Brass and Woodwind : Tradition of Excellence Book 1 for their instrument
 - b. Beginner Percussion: A Fresh Approach to Snare Drum and A Fresh Approach to Mallets.
 - c. Concert Band: Tradition of Excellence Book 1 & 2 for their instrument
2. Binder: 3-ring binder. Plastic sheet protectors work best to protect music.
3. Paper and Pencil
4. Nametag: Every instrument must have a nametag. With a cabinet full of cases the same size and color, this is a necessity. Instruments will be checked frequently to make sure they have them. Luggage tags work fine. Duct tape works fine as well.
5. Classroom Supply: Bring one of the following to class: a box of Kleenex or a bottle of hand sanitizer.

The following lists additional materials that are specific to different instrument types. Please read and see if the following applies to your student.

1. Clarinets and Saxophones: must have 3-4 playable reeds at all times and a reed guard. I would suggest that parents purchase a large quantity of reeds and keep them at home, while the student keeps 3 or 4 in their case on a daily basis. It is not possible to play the instrument without a reed, so please make plans to purchase more when the supply begins to run low, not after they've been without one for days. The recommended strength to start out with is 2.5. Second and third year players should be using a 2.5 or a 3 (depending on the strength of their embouchures). Reeds don't always have to break before they need to be thrown away. They do wear out.
2. Brass Players: must have valve oil, slide oil or grease, a cleaning snake for the inside of the instrument, and a cloth to wipe off fingerprints. Your child should always keep the valves well oiled and the valve casings clean!!! It doesn't do much good to oil a valve if you are going to put it back into a dirty casing. Valves will quit working and cause damage to the valve casings if they dry out. French horn players will need both valve oil and rotary oil.
3. All Wind Players (Brass and Woodwinds): need a soft polishing cloth to wipe fingerprints off the outside surface and keys. Fingerprints and dirt are particularly visible on flutes and saxophones. All woodwind players must have a swab to dry the moisture out of the interior of the instrument. Most new instruments will come with a swab or a cleaning rod.
4. Percussion: must have individual sticks and bell mallets.
5. Wire Music Stand (optional): While not a necessity, is a great idea. The student should practice proper posture and position when they practice. This can be achieved by sitting at a piano, putting their book on a shelf or dresser or on a stand. They should not lay the book flat on a bed or chair and try to bend over to see it.
6. Metronomes (optional): are wonderful tools for reinforcing a steady beat and rhythmic accuracy. No one is required to have one, but they might be a nice gift idea. You can also Google "free metronome" on your computer, and there are many Smartphone apps available for metronomes.
7. Tuners (optional): will be used in class and sometimes checked out by the students. They aid in developing a sense of correct pitch and therefore also help with embouchure and proper breathing.
